The School of Health Professions comprises the Office of the Dean, Division of Nursing, Division of Allied Health-CTE, Social Work Program and Radiographic Science Programs. Reporting to the Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs, the Dean works collaboratively with Division Chairs and Program Directors, in partnership with faculty, to deliver a wide range of high-quality health professions programs to a diverse student body. Graduates of any division or program within the School complete a cohesive course of study that integrates General Education Core requirements, major/ minor program requirements, and/ or elective credits. Through their course of study, students in professional programs have opportunities to engage in on-campus and online coursework, hands-on experiential learning, seminars, research symposia, practica or internships, service learning, second-language study, clubs and activities, and other experiences that enrich their healthcare careers.
